What Poverty Can Do.

American public life is full of examples illustrative of the discipline which poverty brings to bear upon formation of character.

We are prone to look upon poverty as something to be dreaded, but poverty plays an important part in the economy of civilization, and under existing conditions poverty is just as essential to the happiness of mankind as wealth.

Perhaps few of our readers have ever considered the subject in this light, but there is nothing strange or revolutionary in the statement. Suppose wealth is universal. Who would cook our food? Who would be hewers of wood and drawers of water? Who would perform the menial duties of life? Who would stoop to the level of the countless humble vocations which are essential to the well being of society, to the conservation of the health of communities, to the existence of government and to the progress of the world along industrial, commercial and scientific lines? If wealth by any miraculous dispensation should happen to become universal, it would not be long before the wheels of human activity in every direction would be checked; disease would establish permanent headquarters in every populous center, and civilization would soon disintegrate and decay.

Of course if poverty was universal things would be almost as bad. So the welfare of the human race is best subserved by having an admixture of both; but between the two it is more than likely that the human race could exist longer under the reign of universal poverty than under the reign of universal wealth, because in the beginning the world came up from mud and poverty and man was made to exist by tilling the soil and getting what supplies of food and raiment they needed direct from nature's store-houses. In the progress of civilization poverty came before riches.

But when we started out we meant to speak of the disciplinary value of poverty rather than of the part which poverty plays in the economy of civilization, and so we return from this digression.

Examining the history of this country we find that the men who have been chiefly identified with its political, educational, commercial, religious and social life, have come up from the ranks of poverty, having known what it was to suffer in the severe school of adversity and privation. But they made good use of the difficult lessons of experience, and consequently they found in adversity just the discipline they needed to develop the inborn capabilities which nature implanted within them for the welfare of the race.

We have just come across some interesting data bearing directly upon this line of thought. In the current number of "Success" Mortimer A. Downing discusses the early careers of the different members of President McKinley's cabinet, and from this article we get the following information:

At the age of eighteen the various members of the cabinet were thus engaged: Elhan Root was teaching school in one of the towns of New York, John W. Griggs was serving his apprenticeship as a law clerk on a modest salary, Elhan A. Hitchcock was employed in an humble capacity in an extensive commercial establishment in New York, J. C. G. was working in a bank on a salary which barely supported him, Charles E. Smith was a compositor on a newspaper and John D. Long and Jas. Wilson were plain farmer boys.

So poverty instead of being a curse is oftentimes a blessing, the extent of which depends largely upon the use to which we put it.—Atlanta Constitution.

Chronic Sore Leg.

Mr. J. H. Richardson had a running sore on his leg for twenty years. Tried doctors and medicines without end and any permanent good. Mr. L. B. Nunnally, druggist Hartford Iowa, recommended Morley's Sarsaparilla and Iron to cure the cause of the sore and make it heal from the inside. A few bottles cured his leg, and put him in better health than he has been in for twenty years. Ask your druggist.

It Is Not What You Have.

"It is not what you have that makes you happy," says Gov. Bob Taylor in one of his lectures. "The happiest man I ever saw lived on his knees in Tennessee and he was not rich, but how he could eat. Before him bacon and beans and buckwheat cakes melted like the baseless fabric of a dream at waking time. He was invited to a banquet and fasted for three days to get ready. When he took his place at the banquet he was served by the first course. I am served by the very much disappointed at seeing nothing but p. p. But he was determined to make the best of the situation and ordered soup until he was full to the neck. Presently the waiter began bringing in the quail and toast and other things until the table fairly groaned. The fellow looked up and exclaimed: 'What a big fool am I. Here I sit full of soup and the feast has just begun.'

Live Stock Report.
If the horses are constipated give them linseed meal, potatoes, carrots, etc. Variety of feed is very beneficial. A pinch of salt and ashes will keep a horse from having colic. It is also a specific against worms.

Let all the swine out to exercise during good weather. Without exercise and fresh air there cannot be perfect health.

There is no such thing as giving cows an opportunity to drink too much. They should have water where they can get it at will, a little at a time. One ton of manure from hogs fed on middlings is worth twice as much for fertilizing purposes as one ton from hogs fed on corn.

Give the brood sows a cooling and nitrogenous ration. Roots and vegetables, clover hay in which the leaves have been retained, etc., have a very beneficial effect on the digestive organs and improve the general health and thrift of the sow.

There is probably nothing more conducive to unsound feed and legs of a horse than to allow manure to accumulate behind him, that he must stand on with his hind feet, thus throwing his whole body, including legs and feet into a strained and unnatural condition.

The First Twenty Years.
Live as long as you may, the first twenty years form the larger part of your life. They appear so when they are passing; they seem so when we look back on them; and they take up more room in our memory than all the years that come after them.

Take good care of the first twenty years of your life. On the way which you make of them your happiness and usefulness in after years will be largely dependent. See that they are spent in learning right habits and cultivating good tastes.

Beware of a Cough.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the disease which coughs are early cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the disease which coughs are early cured.

It is worthy of note and emphasis that the "Yankee" is the first to stand out against the greed of the Powers that would ruin China by exacting an indemnity far out of all reason and away beyond her ability to pay. Uncle Sam refuses to be a party to any unreasonable demands upon China and this is no "Yankee trick."

A Ragging Howling Flood.

Washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis of Lisbon, Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew worse daily. Finally the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha said I had Consumption and could not live. I began using Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. I positively guaranteed for Cough, Croup and Whooping Cough troubles by T. E. Patti, Price 50c and 100c.

Honor the President.

President McKinley is making a trip which will include many States of the Union in his itinerary, especially those of the South and Pacific slope, bringing him in personal touch with a vast representation of American citizenship.

The President will be heartily welcomed by the people whom he is now to visit. His great office demands such a welcome, and it will be a pleasure to all good Americans to do fitting honor to the President of the United States.

Although the majority of the voters in the Southern States are opposed to Mr. McKinley politically, the South will welcome the President with as great heartiness and as genuine hospitality as any other section of the Union. Mr. McKinley himself is deservedly popular with the Southern people, having done more than other Republicans of recent years to develop a better feeling in the place of old-time sectional hatred.

It is reasonably certain that the Republican press throughout the country will seek to make political capital of the friendly greetings which the people of the Southern States will undoubtedly extend to the President. His reception will be heralded as the beginning of a stampede of the South to Republicanism.

It will be remembered, with a great flourish of trumpets, that the next national campaign of the two great parties will develop a serious Southern dissection from the Democratic party.

Sensile men will not be misled by these misrepresentations of the significance of the South's hospitable treatment of President McKinley. The Southern people will honor the President because he is the President, not because they have abandoned their Democracy for Republicanism. Mr. McKinley will have a good time in the South—which is much more than can be said for the Republican candidate for President in 1901.—St. Louis Republic.

Double Crime.

Owensboro, Ky., April 29.—[Special].—At Runey, McLean county, about dark tonight, David Burton shot his wife in front of her father's house, mortally wounding her, and then shot himself through the heart, killing himself instantly.

Burton and his wife had not been married a few months, and lived in this city, where he was employed at McLean's broom factory. She was the daughter of John Story, of Runey, McLean county. They did not get along, and a few weeks ago she left him and returned to her father's house. To-day Burton went to Runey, and, going to Mr. Story's, called Mrs. Burton to the gate and tried to persuade her to go back home and live with him.

When she refused he drew a pistol and fired at her twice, inflicting mortal wounds. The woman immediately began to scream, and her sister rushed out of the house. Burton also made an attempt to fire at her, but the pistol failed to explode. He then turned the weapon on himself and shot him self through the heart, dying instantly.

County Judge Stevens, of McLean county, was sent for, and quickly impounded a jury, and held an inquest over the dead man's body.

Dr. H. W. Gates, of Calhoun, was called to see Mrs. Burton, and he says she is mortally wounded and cannot live through the night.

Burton was thirty-five years old and his widow is twenty-three.

Twelve years ago J. W. Sullivan, of Hartford, Conn., scratched his leg with a rusty wire. Inflammation and loss of feeling set in. For two years he suffered intensely. For Eruptions, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Sores and all blood disorders Roberts' Balm has no rival on earth. Try them T. E. Patti will guarantee satisfaction or refund money at once.

Dr. G. W. Young, of Georgetown, a noted Methodist divine, and who has charge of an organization perfected by his church and other denominations of the State, for the purpose of advancing the cause of temperance, delivered a very able sermon at the Methodist church, in this city last Sunday forenoon. The speaking was given close attention. At night he addressed a very large assembly upon the subject of temperance. He advanced a number of new ideas, presenting them in a strong and forcible manner. Dr. Young is evidently engaged in a grand work, asking a united effort upon the part of all law abiding citizens to aid him and his co-workers in putting down the evil of strong drink. Whiskey drinking is growing alarming, and unless a better condition of affairs can be brought about, many of the young men of this county will be practically ruined, young men with marks of dissipation now plainly visible.
Miss Daisy Scholl, a young lady well known in Columbia, having been partially reared here, but with her parents, removed to Campbellsville several years ago, was married at Lebanon on Tuesday, the 20th ult., to Mr. George W. Pike, of Livingston, Ky. The rites were solemnized by Rev. A. J. Pike, a Baptist minister, brother of the groom. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left for Louisville and after spending a few days in the city, went to the groom's home in Livingston. Mr. F. B. Bailey and Miss Maggie Baker accompanied the wedding party from Campbellsville to Lebanon.
Farm work is moving along at a rapid rate, and all signs of spring are left behind. The prospects for the crop are bright. The wheat crop, which was thought at one time to be a failure, has come out wonderfully. The cat-crop are all in, and corn planting about over. Early vegetables have already appeared in the market, and the prospects for the chickens were never better. But culture is quite an industry in Adair and Russell counties, and the indications point to a large crop of honey. We look at the situation and we can see no excuse for complaint. Hold your breath! It may be that we can speak of cut-worms next week.
Mr. W. W. Murrell, a former citizen of Adair county, a few years ago he went from Kansas to the territory and gave a pair of mules, supposed to be worth $100, for a horse and a tract of land. It was not long until a railroad was built through his section of the country and a short time ago he sold his land for $100 cash, removed to a more valuable portion of the territory and bought another tract for $1,000. A railroad is now being built to his present location, making his land purchased very valuable. Mr. Murrell was rear in one and one half miles of Columbia and his friends are glad to learn of his prosperity.

The first day of May was small hunting time, and the following young ladies took advantage of the date: Misses Robbie Fuiks, May Fickett, Bessie O'Leary, Lela Jones and Callie B. Barbee. The antiquated custom was, if you met early in the morning, find a snail, put it in a plate covered with meal, it would make the initials of your future husband. The snails were gathered and then the girls knew who they will marry.
The merchants of Columbia were not particularly rushed last week, the weather being delightful for complaining a large majority of the farmers got their crops in. In a few days the spring trade will open lively and customers will be swarming about our stores like bees around a gum. The business men of this place are always delighted when the weather is suitable for the farmer - it is his necessary work, knowing that he is the lone and king of the country.
Mrs. Alfred Murray, who has home a few miles out of town, entertained Misses Elda Bradshaw, Sallie Montgomery, Zilpah Dunbar and Mary Harris last Wednesday. The y report that they spent a most delightful day and enjoyed a beautiful and excellent dinner. No lady in the county knows better how to make her friends feel at home than Mrs. Murray. She is full of life, and possessing a hospitable disposition, she is never better satisfied than when her friends are with her.
Last Friday forenoon Miss Pauline Cahell met with a painful accident while in the News office. She came up to stand with Miss Annie Babank, Mr. and Mrs. Williams was running a job, and it was going so smoothly she concluded to test how easily the work was done, and accordingly she placed her foot upon the treadle, but for some reason the treadle came up after her foot was caught by the cross-bar, mashing it very badly. However, no bones were fractured and the young lady will be alright in a day or two.
Mr. Frank Sinclair, who has been in the real estate business in this place for eight or ten years, sold his stock of books and went to Mr. Scott Montgomery and left yesterday for Oklahoma with the view of locating. His family will remain here until a location is secured. It is our understanding that Mr. Sinclair will again embark in the goods business as soon as a place to suit him is found. He is an honorable man and has been quite successful here. Mr. Scott Montgomery will occupy the business house vacated by Mr. Sinclair.
Several gentlemen in town had bad sport last week, catching game fish. Speaking of the sport, here is what an old fisherman says in the street way of water where you intend fishing. Take a half-gallon jar, fill it with water, put ten or twelve tinie minnows in the vessel, then cover the mouth with a piece of parchment with small holes punched through it. You can tie a string to the jar and drop it into the hole of water where you intend fishing. The game fish will swim around the jar and in two days they become very hungry. Then drop your hook in and you will catch them as readily as you can pull them to the bank.

Consequently it is a good device. The game are everywhere, but they don't get bold of you unless you get your lunge ready for them by collecting a cold or falling to properly cure a cough. The important virtue of Moreley's Honey Pectoral is, that while it cures quickly it cures thoroughly. Ask your druggist.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Malinda Frankum, whose maiden name was Young, was born in Adair county, Ky., February 10, 1832; was married to Josiah Frankum August 6, 1856. They were blessed with nine children, eight of whom are still living, so far as known to the family. She gave her heart to God before she became hardened in sin, and united with the Methodist Church, South, in the year 1852, and endeavored to walk with God from that time until God called her from labor to rest, April 20, 1901.

She was afflicted for seven years before her death, and for more than two years before she bade adieu to earth she was confined to her bed and suffered much during those years, but the grace of God sustained her, and as she drew near the end of her journey she expressed herself as being ready to meet her God. She was a kind, true woman, and the world is better because of her upright life. Her children are good, useful citizens.

May they have the everlasting arms beneath them in this time of trouble.

Her funeral service was conducted by the writer, assisted by her pastor, Rev. James A. Johnson.

JESSE L. MURKIN.

Senator Hanna will no doubt kindly drop in at the White House occasionally during the absence of President McKinley to see that everything is running in ship-shape. He can depend on prompt attention to business when Mr. McKinley is in the stewardship, but the other subordinates may not be discreet.

It is announced that David B. Hill will make a tour of the Southern States next fall. The conclusion is, of course, quickly drawn that there is a movement to nominate him for President of the United States in 1904. Perhaps, though, Mr. Hill is going South merely to help some Democrats out at the election.

Death Sentence.

Danville, Ky., April 30.—After being out three o'clock yesterday afternoon, the jury in the case of Eugene Montgomery, the negro charged with murdering his four-year-old child to secure life insurance amounting to $5,000, rendered a verdict of guilty and fixed the penalty at death.

Montgomery seemed totally unmoved by the verdict, merely remarking to a negro, as he passed out, that he was to be hanged.

He is a notorious character and has served a term in the penitentiary.

This is the second death sentence to be imposed this term of court. Reuben Quinn having been sentenced last week for killing Policeman Crum.

The trial of Dan Pope, colored, who shot and killed a white man named John Baker, near Mitchellburg, is set for to-morrow.

The Boer war has cost England $720,000,000 and it is likely that sum will be increased to a billion before the war is over. The spectacle of what was once the greatest nation on earth spending such an enormous sum of money in an effort to defeat a republic whose population is less than the city of Milwaukee is one which ought to make the British public open its eyes.

And in addition to the money cost the number of British lives lost in this war was higher than even they will admit. Turly President Kruger was prophetic when he said that the cost of putting down his country would stagger humanity.

The aristocratic suburb of Hyde Park, Chicago is in the throes of a revolution, and it is all on account of the High school. There are 520 pupils to graduate from that institution this year and as the school hall is not large enough to hold all their friends, and the board of education want pay for the auditorium, some of the pupils want to disperse with the exercises altogether. Somebody suggested to charge admission, but the pupils scorned at the idea. In a Michigan town, the whole graduating class served notice on the school board and faculty that they would not prepare any graduation exercises. They say that it is too old-fashioned and entirely tiresome. It will be seen that High school pupils are becoming very independent in this 20th century of ours.

The colored man in the south will not be able to make much headway as a farmer until he gets out of the notion of running into debt for light-colored rods, buggies, organs and fancy top coats.

The Passing of the Confederate Soldier

In the passing of the confederate soldier much that is distinctive and noble in American character suffers loss. The term chivalry in connection with the southerner is somewhat trite, and a phrase of what was never the quality is sheer bombast and a stage role. But if you would know what real chivalry is, get intimately acquainted with almost any gray-headed man who wore the gray. This man, the steel of whose youth issued from the fiery crucible pure gold, has given the world an example of heroism in peace greater than he gave it in war. He has never posed and held out his hat. The poverty that received him ragged and lean from the surrender has stuck to him closer than a brother, perhaps, these thirty-five years and the infirmities of age have added gall to life's wormwood cup, but he is swallowing the dregs with the dignity of a self-respect and the patience of a lofty manhood. This relic of the Spartan breed was never a swaggering breasting out threatening, but gentle as a woman and simple as a child. He did and is doing his duty, as conscience taught him to see it, and he has accepted the consequences as such natures face bravely fate. God knows how he has "worried along" to this good day.

Here is a volume of insight into the character of the living confederate soldier in a brief paragraph: Georgia, the right arm of the confederacy and the Empire State of the South, is only now about to complete a modest frame home for her invalid and superannuated veterans. Of the thousands of confederate soldiers who have valid claims upon this refuge in sickness and age, eighty-three have applied for admission.

Flowers for the soldier dead, but better that the living and undecorated soldier's resting place from this generation's memory than that their surviving comrades be left to totter alone in their dire necessities. Each year sees more age-worn stragglers drop out of this little army's ranks in the forced march of life.

Flowers for the sleepers, and the bosom of a country's love for the tired books about to fall asleep.

But, looking across to the shade of the eternal trees, there is something that disturbs the soul of the confederate veteran more than fear of poverty and death. Jealous of the honor of his deeds, he is afraid of the perversion of history.

Let him be reassured. We, his sons and daughters, will take care of that for him forever.—Sunny South.

If little Cuba is willing to meet Uncle Sam half-way, she'll find him waiting now with his part of the journey completed.

Nervous Prostration.

Mrs. Lettie Fisher Says: I had nervous trouble for years, which at times completely prostrated me and made life not worth living. I tried many physicians and no end of nerve and other remedies without relief. Mr. J. C. Crews, merchant, Maloy, Iowa, persuaded me to try Morey's Sarsaparilla and Iro. The very first bottle went to the right spot, for I felt a complete change and now, after using six bottles in all, I am perfectly well. Sold by agent in every town.

There were five thousand car loads of grapes marketed from the grape growing territory on the shores of Lake Erie last season. These grapes were mostly Concord. Isabelas and Delaware.

A Sprained Ankle Quickly Cured.

"At one time I suffered from a severe sprain of the ankle," says Geo. E. Cary, editor of the Guide, Washington, Va. "After using several well recommended medicines without success, I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and am pleased to say that relief came as soon as I began its use and a complete cure speedily followed. This remedy has also been used in my family for a long time with the best results. I cheerfully recommend its use to all who may need a first-class salve." Sold by M. Craven.

Wages for farmhands are about $2 a month higher this year than they have been for many years. The farmhand can now wear a red necktie and crepe pants and smoke "twokers."

Now They Understand.

Now that the delegates sent to Washington by the Cuban Constitutional Convention have been fully enlightened as to the logic and justice of the American attitude toward their country in the matter of future relations between the two Governments, it is in order to hope that an amicable official understanding may soon be reached.

All that was necessary to this end was that the Cubans should bring to their study of the conditions of the Platt amendment a spirit devoid of suspicion of American motives. The United States Government is not striving to prevent the establishment of a free and independent Cuban Republic by means of a friendly protection which shall effectually warn Europe to keep hands off Cuba when that little Government is finally established.

There is reason to believe that the Cuban delegates now appreciate the fairness of the proposition which guarantees permanency to the Cuban Republic, while at the same time properly safeguarding American interests. The report to be made by the delegates to the Cuban Constitutional Convention should produce speedy and satisfactory results. If it is properly based on the facts in the case it will so strongly recommend the acceptance of the conditions named in the Platt amendment that such action on the part of the convention will be inevitable.—St. Louis Republic.

Europe Stands Clear.

English financiers are probably wise in making no attempt to participate in the great bull movement on the New York Stock Exchange, the amazing extent of which has both bewildered and alarmed the outside world. The failure of Europe to yield to the magnificence of this movement seems to be due to the fact that it sees no special reason for such a movement.

What has happened to justify a belief that securities of all sorts are legitimately bound to go sky-high in price, and that even stocks which have never paid or earned a dividend are good investments figures very above their par value? What is sending such waves up, beyond the manipulations of interested outsiders?

European financiers are asking these questions and finding no satisfactory answers.

To a cautious and conservative mind, the situation seems to be simple. The people of this country are prosperous. The great commercial and industrial corporations are making money. There is a logical reason for a logical advance in sound stocks that have already demonstrated their dividend-paying ability. There is no reason for a wild bull boom. There is no reason why stocks that have never paid or earned a dividend should be more desirable as investments now than before the wild bull boom began. Remember these plain truths. It may mean money in your pocket.

It's Easy To Feel Good.

It is now time for the stockmen to advertise their stock. In our judgment the newspaper that reaches the people is the very best medium. Bills do little towards advertising, as they are rarely ever seen but a few miles from home; their purpose in the main is to set forth terms. The News, read by 5,000 people every week, is ready to tell the story. If you have good stock, worthy and desirable, advertise in this paper.

The Boer war has already cost the British government more than the Crimean war, and the prospects are that the expenses are not all over either. The great and mighty British empire is about to become bankrupt and all to please Cecil Rhodes. And the British public seem to be satisfied. It is hard to understand Mr. J. Bull. It is safe however to predict that the British house of Commons will not appropriate any money for the relief of the famine-stricken people of India this year, and it is also safe to say that the Irish taxes will not be reduced. These two things may cause complications in Anglo-Saxon affairs which may help the cause of the Boers very materially.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders start at that time and grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are killing graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a palatable and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to give young women for every day of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Min Della M. Stryer, Tully, Kans. "I have suffered until pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything. I felt was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Theriot's Blackberry, when needed, and today I am cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, druggists, or send to: Wine of Cardui, Dr. J. C. Stryer, 1111 Broadway, New York City, or to the nearest branch office.

Consumption is a germ disease. The germs are everywhere, but they cannot get hold of you unless you get your lungs ready for them by neglecting a cold or failing to properly cure cough. The honest merit of Murrey's Honey Pectoral is, that while it cures quickly it cures thoroughly. Ask your druggist.

The Standard Oil people have been asleep. They have purchased the wharfage at Port Arthur, Texas. The question of the Texas oil men now is, how will we ship our goods.

The farmer should know the prices in market of everything he buys and sells. It is just as important that he keep himself well informed as it is for the merchant to do so. The latter endeavors to buy to advantage in order to make a profit, and the farmer is benighted equally as well when he knows the condition of the markets. The crop reports are also useful, as they give the area in grain crops and from time to time inform the farmer of the prospective yields.—Ex.

A Sample of Infamy.

"One reason the assassin of Senator Goebel has not been discovered has been that the officers of the State have formed their conclusions first and searched for their facts later. Nothing has been worth considering unless it added the effort to hang Taylor and damn the Republican party. Another reason for the failure to find the assassin has been the cloud of false witnesses, who have obscured the horizon, drawn from fruit quarters of the earth by the $100,000 reward fund."—Louisville Post.

While The Times does not for a moment believe, nor does it believe that the Louisville Post believes, the above statement, it republishes it as a fair sample of the infamous methods employed by the Irish press to reach the reason for the failure to find the assassin has been the cloud of false witnesses, who have obscured the horizon, drawn from fruit quarters of the earth by the $100,000 reward fund."—Louisville Post.

Henry E. Tontley is now serving a life sentence in the Frankfort penitentiary for the killing of William Goebel. Howard has been convicted and sentenced to be hanged for the assassination of Governor Goebel.

Chief Powers has been convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for life as an accessory before the fact to the murder of William Goebel.

It is true that the cases of both Howard and Powers have been reversed, but that signifies only that their doom has been postponed.

W. S. Taylor and Chas. Finley have fled the State and taken refuge in Indiana to escape trial for the murder of Governor Goebel and a just punishment for the crime of assassination.

And yet this time, the price of daily liars, day after day, issue after issue, declares that the assassin of Governor Goebel has never yet been discovered, and that no evidence connecting the accused with this most bloody and horrible crime has been uncovered.—Glasgow Times.

It is said that a Lancaster man sent the following note to his family physician: "My wife's appetite is just death's door. Please call and see if you can't pull her through."

A Very Remarkable Remedy. "It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Cough, Croup and Whooping Cough Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy offered for sale in my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the last summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came in to my store to overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever." Sold by M. Craven.

The Making of Good Coffee

Begins in the growing. Anywhere between the plantation and the coffee pot the flavor may be changed, the quality spoiled by carelessness, inexperience, or unscrupulous methods. From the time Arbuckle's Coffee leaves the hands of the grower until it reaches the user in a sealed packet, it is handled with the same watchful care, the same thought for cleanliness, that you would give any article of food that goes on your table. That's the reason it costs the grocer a cent a pound more than his cheap imitations. The extra cent you pay for buys much more than a cent's worth of quality and strength. A pound of Arbuckle's Coffee will give you more cupsful of better coffee than you would get from other package coffees.

Be sure you get Arbuckle's Roasted Coffee. Other package coffees are but imitations of Arbuckle's.

In each pound package of Arbuckle's Roasted Coffee there is a list of articles. With each package in which the list is found the purchaser has bought a dollar's worth of extra article to be selected by him or her from the list, subject only to the condition that the signature on the package is to be in red ink and returned to the National Dept. You should see this list. Address all communications to
